It was my first time working on the credentials committee. I only had the opportunity to pop in and out of the conference. I enjoyed working on the committee. I was able to work with a great group and to meet new people.

In the conference, there was talk about our fight for justice and the question was asked "were we going to do something about it or not". Motivating our youth and getting them involved is very important.

The dean of the Black President of the Union, is what they call him, Lee Saunders announced his retirement after almost 50 years in the union. We must never forget the founders of CBTU. Never forget what it took to get us to where we are right now because everything they fought for is now under attacked. We are being challenged, what are we going to do about it?

CBTU was made for this.

I attended the women's luncheon. It is always a nice time to have the opportunity to network with people. The program was very nice. However, the food was not really desirable. It was not cooked well.

Looking forward to attending again.
